VAST

Dance-theatre performance

Editorial

After the success of their show BHU/EARTH in India, Philippe Pelen Baldini and Thierry Moucazambo are happy to introduce their new production, VAST. For this new show they have collaborated with Gopal Dalami, a young Indian contemporary dancer with Nepalese origins.

Surya Performance Lab

Surya Performance Lab is an aurovilian dance theater company with artists who are fully dedicated to research for new dramaturgy in performing arts.

It is based in Auroville near Pondicherry, South India in partnership with Ritam and Barbara Paschinger.

This professional dance theater company is directed by Philippe Pelen Baldini and Thierry Moucazambo, assisted by Gopal Dalami.

Surya Performance Lab tends to create a bridge between art, science and consciousness.

We work under Auroville art service.

Theme

How the human body carries in itself the memory of the Vast.

How the human body – beyond ruptures, oppressions, and confinements – has nostalgia of Nature and Vastness.

Story

This is the story of a young boy from Nepal who has been snatched from his family and home in the Himalaya Mountains. Kidnapped and abused, he now lives in a slum in a big city in India.

He is all alone in the world, stifling in his small room. Beyond confinement and misery, he tries, day after day, to find in his body a door that opens to the Vast, a path to his Himalaya, Nature, and his own unlimited nature.

An encounter with a strange character will help him on his journey. This is the god Hanuman, with monkey and human features, who is heroic, wise, and full of humour.

Staging notes

Two performers: both actors and contemporary dancers.

In a confined space, denoting a small room in a slum, these two characters feel in their bodies the vital need of the Vast.

For the young boy whose childhood and dreams were broken, the journey from confinement to freedom is a process of reconnection with nature and with himself without any limitation. In this journey he is helped by Hanuman. Together they reconnect with the Vastness where they both come from.

Hanuman is introduced here as a special character: he is the symbol of primordial memory. This important character in India is also universal and exists with different names in China, Africa, Indonesia, and elsewhere.

“In the Himalayas, everything becomes frequencies, everything becomes sounds and dance.” -- Indian poet

VAST proposes a work on the memory of the body. To reactivate this memory, we use new technologies for sound and work with different sound frequencies. Music and sound are a very important part of this journey. We are also exploring the relationship between the body and mother tongue and between the body and ancient mantric poetry, body and words.

The text is very short. It is performed in English or French and Nepalese. Priority is given to body expression, physical theatre and dance.

We draw upon contemporary dance, theatre, vocal work, and even aerial dance to explore this inner territory between confinement and Vastness. From gravity to weightlessness, it is also an exploration of the body being free, of free movements in three dimensions, and of an expansion into Vastness.

Beyond all ruptures and exiles, it is a process of reconnection with the Himalaya in a metaphorical sense.

VAST is an organic dance theatre performance: hypnotic, physical, universal.

Hanuman to the young exiled man:

“You came in this city but your spirit is still running on top of the mountain and Sagarmatha the mountain goddess is taking care of you. Do you feel it?

Noisy city, noisy world, but your strength and aura are great. Your complexion is still illustrious like hot molten gold.

Your Himalaya is so far and so close, so just fly, fly”.
